

This image shows a vertical cross-section or a close-up of a textured surface. A prominent, dark, and heavily textured vertical band runs down the center. To the left of this band is a lighter, more uniform textured area. To the right is a darker, more mottled and grainy area. A thin, dark vertical line is visible in the right-hand section. The overall appearance is that of a book's binding or a piece of aged, layered material.

TO SNUFF VOLCANOES.

Startling Discovery Made by An Australian.

Volcanoes can easily be extinguished, says the New York Herald. A New Zealand man claims (and there are many who agree with him) to have discovered a liquid by means of which volcanoes may be extinguished quickly whether active or threatening.

Many diseases of the human body act in the same manner as volcanoes. Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Kidney Disorders, Female Diseases and many others all begin with a slight rumble of pain and distress, and if not treated in time will burst forth in all their fury, causing all who are so afflicted the most intense suffering and making life a complete burden.

That a liquid has been discovered that will extinguish these volcanic eruptions of disease, whether active or threatening, is not only certain but a material fact.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is this liquid discovery. THE WONDERFUL CURATIVE powers of this famous remedy have cut a new path through the field of medicine, sweeping with it a startling record of tremendous success.

Druggists sell it in New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles.

Sample bottle, enough for trial, free by mail. Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y.

Talisman.

As Arion, the lyric poet, to whom the sea was his ally, Was spared because of his music's sweet— The rare melody of his lay, So our words and words Ever rebound our praise, And may the sweetness of our lives A thousand voices sing.

JENNIE E. SNOW KIMBALL.

Ruel Gray's Vision.

Poor old, simple Ruel Gray Lived in a desultory way. Sometimes he'd money, sometimes food, And when he had why both were good. He dwelt within a cabin small, Squat down by a country well. He had no wife to love or hate— Reason, law, perhaps, or fate.

No school, no books, no books to read, But an overplus of poverty. Not much, you say, to bother a man, Well, perhaps he took more comfort than Many a man that I could choose. Still he seem to lead a happy life. When folks spoke of him they said He had a screw loose in his head, He was as smart as he well could be. I write of him because of this. No school to him, but he was in bliss As on his dying bed he lay. At sunset of life and close of day.

"I see," said in his city life, With golden turrets high in air, And in the Street of Light I see The hands of the 15th century. I see," said he, "the light I run O'er each proud palace in the sun. No school to him, but he was in bliss As on his dying bed he lay. At sunset of life and close of day.

Sebago Lake.

After five miles' sailing and turning, one reaches the picturesque Look at the confluence of the Songo and Crooked rivers. Soon after the settlement of the town of Gorham, one of the most formidable assaults on the English ever known in the early annals of Maine was made by the tribes from the interior. A great number of canoes from the head of Lake Wyonogomic (Long Lake) passed to the foot of Sebago, and formed their warriors, several hundred in number, into one vast hostile body.

Worrambus, a chieftain of splendid prowess, no unworthy match for his antagonist, led the attack upon the block-house or fort at Gorham, whither the English had betaken themselves. An hour which threatened extinction to all the settlers in the part of the country. The place was fiercely contested.

At last after several hours of desperate fighting Worrambus received a mortal wound and fell. The repulse of the Indian tribes was the result. They retreated, however, in goodly order, and the settlers in the part of the country, with loud lamentations their dying chieftain, around whom they moved, a long and melancholy train, until they reached the well known look at the meeting of the Songo and Crooked rivers. Here, at his request, they raised the fallen leader from his floating death bed and laid him on the bank, where he immediately expired.

This vast expanse was covered with indistinct spiritual airy forms circulating around and mingling together as far as I could see, and came close up where I stood, no distinguishable forms only in part but had human, voices though seldom spoke.

All was harmonious, peaceful, and still. Dreamed I to be the most beautiful panorama I ever saw and it seemed a great joy and wonderment to me. I had no wish or desire to investigate. I seemed to be the only physical form present and felt happy in the position.

Vyron Lowe of Randolph also visited there last week.

Responsive.

There was at least one responsive hearer in the crowded little church in an English village, and it happened this way:

Guests had arrived unexpectedly at the country parsonage on Sunday morning.

The weekly supply of butter had run short, so the hospitable host dispatched old Joe, the handy man, to his neighbor, Mr. Paul, whose dairy always boasted a surplus. The person proceeded to church with his well prepared sermon on some of the deep sayings of the great apostle and was well under way with it when old Joe, returning empty handed, conchided he would quietly slip in and hear his master preach.

Just as he entered the preacher leaned over the pulpit, stretched forth his hand with a most impressive intonation in voice and manner and called out, "And what did Paul say?" Distinctly sounded through the church old Joe's reply:

"He say, master, he ain't going to let you have no more butter till you pay for the last you got."

FOWLS MUST HAVE EXERCISE.
A man confined in jail with but little exercise soon loses the rosy hue of health, loses appetite, becomes pale and before long the sheriff telephones the county physician, for something must be done or the man will die. Fowls confined in a little jail of a yard, hard tramped and impervious to insects, will for lack of needed exercise lose appetite, fall in flesh, suffer from indigestion and become generally of "no account" for eggs or anything else. Exercise is necessary to the well being of all locomotive animals. Clams and oysters can do very well without it but fowls cannot.

Kill the Mites.

If there are mites in the fowls house, kill them all at one fell swoop. Get 10 cents' worth of carbolic acid, make a strong, hot soapuds, put half the acid in the sprinkling pot and pour in the hot suds and thoroughly sprinkle, throwing the solution high up on the walls. Do this in the morning and shut the fowls out during the day. Two days later clean out the house and use the rest of the acid in the same way. In this way in three days the number of mites may be reduced from 10,000, 000,000 or any other number to 0. Exchange.

WEST FRYEBURG.

A Flag Raising

There was a flag raising at the school house last week, Wednesday. At three o'clock exercises appropriate to the day which designedly or by chance was the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

An original paper was read by Calista Andrews. A recitation, the ever appreciated "Barbara Frietchie" was given with good effect by Nellie Heath. Ellis McKean read bits of history relating to the origin and adoption of the flag that was interesting and the singing of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" and the "Star Spangled Banner" by the school under the leadership of Louise Ballard was a pleasing feature. There were addresses by Supervisor McKean, Dean A. Ballard and E. E. Burbank which they all left the room to see the flag raised. The youngest scholar, Ida Ballard, held the flag assisted by Hulda Robbins and Florence Sargent.

Etta Cameron, the teacher, deserves the credit for the training necessary to results so entirely satisfactory and that many were in attendance must have been gratifying to all concerned. But one schoolhouse in town now is without a flag.

George Cushman of Roxbury, Mass. is a guest of James Hardy and other relatives in the place during his vacation, part of which he will spend in canvassing for a book in this and adjacent towns.

The last day Miss Harlow gave the scholars a nice treat, consisting of lemonade, soda crackers, peanuts and candy. Names of scholars not absent one-half day during the term are Daisy and Gerald Briggs.

BRYANT'S POND.

A poor homeless woman came to Emerson Billings', Saturday night. They took her in and kindly cared for her till Monday morning, then started on her journey. She was not very communicative about herself. She said she came from near Bowdoinham—that she was led by the Lord where to go, and that she was going to Bethel, then to New Hampshire. She said that her husband was in late life and of insanity and was cared for by his people. There is a sad thought in seeing these homeless and friendless creatures going about, one knows not where, saying "As much as ye have done it unto the least of one of these," etc.

Frank Vincent of Milan is finishing the church inside. A chimney has been built and it will soon be ready for the inside furnishings. The three memorial windows, Lombard, Wilson and Spaulding are very pretty and add much to the beauty of the church.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited. How do they manifest themselves? In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility. How are they expelled? By Hood's Sarsaparilla which also builds up the system that has suffered from them. It is the best medicine for all humors.

EAST STONEHAM.

Caught a Bear.

Frank McAllister of Stoneham and George Whitehouse of Lovell caught a bear a few days since at Miles' Notch. They estimate it would have weighed nearly 300 pounds. These men are veteran hunters and have in the past rendered valuable service in trapping bears and other wild animals.

Edwin Allen is building a new house.

Engene Evans is about to make some repairs on his buildings.

There has been a little brushing up done to the vestry of late.

Mrs. Hattie Parker, who has been sick for several weeks past, is a little more comfortable, though still quite sick.

Mrs. Edith Merrill has been very sick for the past few days, considered critically ill some of the time. Her mother is with her.

Charles Stearns' calf was found the next day after the cow was found. It was alive and active and was in a sheltered place under the root of a tree.

We are hoping that the boys will not "make night hideous" the night before the Fourth, as has been the case in previous years. Just think of the sick ones, and the sorry also, and "let us have peace," if we can't have plenty.

It has rained almost all the time and is remarkably cool for the season. The prospect is we shall have to go without peas, sweet corn and strawberries this summer, and if this wet, cold weather continues, nothing except weeds will be the principal harvest.

Albert Littlefield's venerable mare, Maggie, aged 22 years and over, has a young colt a week or two old, and owns it. Several years ago, she had a colt, but refused to recognize it or let it stay in her stall. In consequence, the colt died, though an effort was made to rear it by the bottle.

In the last paper I read an explanation of "Why Popcorn Pops," which may be understood by the writer. But to my comprehension it is about as lucid as the explanation given by a quack doctor to an old lady. She had shaking palsy and asked the doctor what made her head go niddy-noddy. He told her that her blood had become highly phlegmatic, that her whole system had become stratagated, her daffedrom was slightly conserated and that caused the dropping of the hat into the plaster.

That caused the head to go tizzarissen, tizzarissen. She was awestricken by his profound wisdom and replied, "La, doctor, you have explained my case exactly."

Mrs. F. Wright, of Oelwein, Iowa, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Overshadowing indeed is the success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—compared with it, all other medicines for women are experiments.

Why has it the greatest record for absolute cures of any female medicine in the world? Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work among women for a quarter of a century? Simply because of its sterling worth. The reason that no other medicine has ever reached its success is because there is no other medicine so successful in curing woman's ills. Remember these important facts when a druggist tries to sell you something which he says is just as good.

A Young New York Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—My trouble was with the ovaries; I am tall, and the doctor said I grew too fast for my strength. I suffered dreadfully from inflammation and doctored continually, but got no help. I suffered from terrible dragging sensations with the most awful pains low down in the side and pains in the back, and the most agonizing headaches. No one knows what I endured. Often I was sick to the stomach, and every little while I would be too sick to go to work for three or four days; I work in a large store, and I suppose standing on my feet all day made me worse.

"At the suggestion of a friend of my mother's I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is simply wonderful. I felt better after the first two or three doses; it seemed as though a weight was taken off my shoulders; I continued its use until now I can truthfully say I am entirely cured. Young girls who are always paying doctor's bills without getting any help as I did, ought to take your medicine. It costs so much less, and it is sure to cure them.—Yours truly, ADELAIDE PRAHL, 174 St. Ann's Ave., New York City."

Women should not fail to profit by Miss Adelaide Prahl's experiences; just as surely as she was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so certainly will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure others who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration; remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. Address is Lynn, Mass.; your medicine is free and always helpful.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letter and signature of above testimonial, which will prove its absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Chase—Wight.

One of the simplest weddings seen at Evening Church was that of Wednesday evening, June 24, of Alice Louise Wight of Boston and Julian Dwight Chase, Harvard, '02, of Dedham. There were no decorations.

Promptly at 7.30, a large number of Miss Wight's girl friends came by two down the center aisle to the front of the church, where they separated, passing into the front pews, where they remained standing. Immediately afterward, the wedding march from Lohengrin sounded and the bridal party was formed. The ushers were classmates of the groom and members of Iota Chapter of Theta Delta Chi, and Frank Rufus Chase, his cousin.

Then came Margery Hart of Medford, a tiny flower girl, in white muslin over green, carrying a large basket of white flowers. The bridesmaid was Florence Linnell of Winter Hill, who was gowned in pink crepe de chine. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Next came the bride, leaning on the arm of her brother, Arthur Warren Wight, who gave her away. She was attired in white satin and chignon with pearl trimmings, wearing a veil and carrying a bouquet of white roses. They were met at the chancel by the groom with his best man, Richard Wigglin Drown of Lynn. Rev. Leighton Perks performed the ceremony.

After the ceremony, the happy couple, assisted by Mrs. Georgietta Wight, mother of the bride, Mr. Wight and Dr. and Mrs. John W. Chase of Dedham, parents of the groom, received in the bride's porch, which was handsomely decorated with palms. Four young ladies assisted the ushers. The organist rendered pleasing selections, members of the family and the bridal party were entertained at the home of Mrs. Wight on Dalton street, whence Mr. and Mrs. Chase departed amid showers of confetti and rice.

Mr. Chase, who is connected with the B. F. Sturtevant Company, was previously remembered by them. The bride, who is well known as an elocutionist, received remembrances from a host of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Chase will reside in Dedham.

Mrs. Chase has relatives in Norway, and is well known in the town.

Pearson's Magazine for July contains leading articles on Fencing, the sport of President Roosevelt, the clam fisheries of the Mississippi river with the industry of button making from the shells, the Grand Canon of Colorado, Abdul Hamid, sultan of Turkey, and how wild animals are captured, besides several short stories and two serials.
